Most people die from a breakdown of some part of the system very few from a ripe old age. This is not the case with the new No. 11 Massey-Harris Drills, of those who use them say they are very strongly built, doing their work uniformly and well and standing very hard usage.

Mr. Askey, local agent for Massey-Harris Co. has completed arrangements with G. F. Coffey & Son to pay to both sides of their warehouses with no sign as soon as the weather permits. This speaks well for Carlstadt progressiveness, an example some of our other business men would do well to follow.

Weep, and you're called a baby. Laugh, and you're called a fool. Yield, and you're called a coward. Stand, and you're called a mule. Smile, and they call you silly. Frown and they call you gruff. Put on a front like a millionaire. And somebody'll call your bluff.

LOCAL NEWSNOTES

Star of the Prairie—Carlstadt! It is shining brighter every day.

Try to leave him alone and the wench will come to his own.

Work is progressing on F. C. McDougall's new building.

New settlers are arriving in Carlstadt district every day and it is going to be a busy spring.

Business in all lines seems to be fairly active in Carlstadt and everybody is prosperous.

W. G. Scollard has just received a big consignment of farm machinery.

The Harvest depends very largely upon Seed Time. The new No. 11 Massey-Harris Drills are built especially for Alberta, and will do your work well under all conditions.

Two carloads of Hardware have recently arrived for A. J. Drummond & Co. and another is on the way. They are certainly selling the goods.

W. G. Scollard was at Calgary on business the first of the week, returning home Tuesday morning.

H. R. Bean will move into his new store early in April. He will have commodious and up-to-date quarters and will carry a larger line of goods than at present.

The "Last Great West" demands the Best. There are no better plots than the "Great West" Bulky and Giant Plots. See them at the Massey-Harris Agency.

Mr. Farmer—Do you want the best implements and machinery that money can buy, at prices that are right? You can get them, also a square deal, at the Massey-Harris Agency.

The C. P. R. should provide a subway at the crossing here. The grade is too steep and teams frequently get stalled on the crossing.

Jack Hendon has returned from his vacation, during which he visited the coast cities of Seattle, Tacoma and Vancouver, stopping off at Bull of his return.

Mrs. Goss expects to visit Carlstadt soon and will be at Bean's store with a full line of fashionable millinery. She will be prepared to trim over or make hats to order.

Mark the words of this paper. Fortitude will be made in a few years from now in real estate in the town along the line, between McFadden Hat and Calgary. We are in the path of rapid advancement and will in a few years be surrounded by thousands of happy homes.

Langdon's board of trade has resolved itself into the "I Will Boogie Langdon" club, and every booster will wear a button. Hope they won't be playing "Bullion, bullion, who has the best of it?" It is the intention of the new organization to spare no efforts to bring the town's name in prominence before the outside world. It's a good pattern for other towns along the line to follow if they can keep the kickers out of it.

FAITH is one of the most wonderful and at the same time one of the most blessed traits of the human character. Without faith progress is impossible. No nation has ever advanced only along the hills of deep and abiding faith. Faith makes the desert blossom as the rose and fills the silent places with the throbs of life and energy. Today this Northland in million-acre stretches, is locked in the icy grip of winter, but behold the sturdy faith of the husbandman who buys farm machinery, and is already busy in preparation for the coming harvest. He looks out on a measureless white waste of snow but by the eye of faith he beholds golden harvests showing there to reward his patience and toil. Faith is the burnished shield of the optimist with which all warfare is equipped to meet wrong and calamity and go against the powers of pessimism and darkness. Let us have faith in this Land of Opportunity and make of it the garden and glory of the world. Let us face its labor and its problems with a sweet and unselfish optimism that knows not defeat and we shall have our reward by and by.

better schools, some for better churches, others for better social and political activities, good roads, larger financial returns, and better homes. It is only by working together, the scientist and practical farmer, that life profitable farming leads the way to the solution of many of the other problems, but will not solve them without.

Farm home management aims to help farm women by meeting their problems on their own ground. It aims to put into practice on Missouri farms those principles of home economy and agriculture which have been tested out by scientific experiment. The basis of our work is individual, not motto, "Do." From the individual we make country and state organizations, instead of forming the state organization first with the expectation local organizations will follow, which in some instances they have done. Farm home management was begun September 1, 1911, at the university of Missouri, in cooperation with the department of farm management, which has been doing much. Missouri farmers since the establishment a little more than one year ago.

A woman asks us to assist her to make our home better. I arrange to visit the farm and go over the house, yard, poultry house, garden and orchard with her—if she is the manager of either of the latter—and suggest a few ideas, as on the average Missouri farm.

We talk over the possible improvements that can be made with the amount of money that she can spare for this purpose. We look into the future and decide on the end we hope to reach, then work towards that as fast as finances will permit.

On one farm which I visited not long ago, the house had been built only a few years previously to meet the needs of a family of eight. It was thought at this time to be as nearly ideal as finances would permit. Fortunately the upstairs had not been finished, so this gave us a chance to make some changes without much difficulty. The house was so built that in each of the five bedrooms it was possible to put in another window, so that cross ventilation and more light could be secured and the rooms made much pleasanter. One for each bedroom were arranged for a bed, a bath-room, by moving the kitchen sink, all plumbing could be easily made into one system.

The kitchen was very dark because of a very dark green paint upon the walls. Changing this to a white with a small border in light blue will make a great difference in the amount of light in the room. The dining room, joined the kitchen at one corner, while just in front of the kitchen was a bed-room. The closet and bed-room are to be made into a dining room and the former dining room will be a sitting room. This will save many steps in passing and removing dishes and food from the dining table. Convenient cupboards can easily be built in the kitchen.

By putting out an outside door into the reception room of the house and building a small porch over it, the entrance can easily be changed to the side nearest to the drive instead of the opposite side where it is at present. With these changes one farmer's wife will be saved unnecessary steps now taken and a little time will be found for much needed rest. The poultry house, garden and orchard on this farm are in good condition, so our advice will be directed toward getting larger returns from poultry and more variety in the vegetable garden.

Sometimes, the house is a log one, with uneven floors and leaky roof, which must be made comfortable for the winter or meeting it is too small and ugly have an addition. Again, the ceilings and floors will need raising and the upstairs rooms need more windows.

A good supply of pure water is another thing that I try to get on each farm that I visit, also good drainage. The waste water, which is so often thrown between the walls and the kitchen floor. The purchase of conveniences, household furniture, wallpaper, and floor coverings are other problems which I try to meet. Color combinations and good line enter into house furnishings and the layout of the yard. This is an opportunity for the farmer's wife to increase some of her lot for the beautiful.

Food for the farmer's table is another problem I try to meet. In some farm homes I have visited the same food remains on the table from one meal to another, except such as is served hot, until it is cold and inedible. There are often several kinds of jelly or preserves and canned fruit on the table at one meal. If hot food is left over, it will be served in the same form at the next meal. The table with two sets is fed on meat more than the mother wonders why the baby cries, or is sick. These farm women have been so busy with the details of washing, ironing, sweeping and cooking, that they have fallen into the habit of cooking the same food in the same way and do not think of the many possibilities of change.

The keeping of farm accounts has shown several farmers where they have made poor investments. We expect the accounts of poultry, the home dairy, the garden, the orchard, and the household expenses to show how the farm home can be better managed to get more for the time and money expended. In some homes a needless amount of time is spent in the kitchen; in others not enough. With the expenditure of time and energy the few pounds of surplus butter, over that used by the family to get more for 10 or 15 cents more a pound if the milk and cream are better cared for and the product put up in better milk. By care in gathering eggs and selecting poultry larger returns will be received.

The women on demonstration farms are an example to their neighbors who learn how certain results are obtained. All the farmers' wives in the neighborhood are helped by having an example of good, home management before them year after year. Then see and believe and try the same things in their own homes. The plan is to have only six demonstration farms in a county and to hold a public meeting on this farm once a year to show what results have been obtained, in the house and in the field.

The department of farm management pays nothing for the service neither does the department pay the farmer or loan him money. Those who become members of the farm management association may become co-operators. From the co-operators, one demonstrator for a county is chosen. His farm is called a demonstration farm. There is a long waiting list of names of those who want us to visit their farms. Several farmers with whom the department is now working were planning to move to town because farming would not pay. After a year's trial they were convinced that a well managed farm would pay and more who now aim to stay on the farm.

Through farm home management we believe farm life can be partly relieved of its drudgery, that the silent partner will advance on the farm, and that both the farmer and his wife can later be interested in the improvement of the rural schools and churches.

Miss Martha Ball, demonstrator in Proctor office, is on the sick list this week.

Progress Prose Poems

By Kalgos

Old Mr. Frump was in a dump, you could not make him see that anything was right, by jing he said "just leave me be." He had a rut, you could not put him right on any theme, he lay on life as pain and strife, and happiness a dream. He missed a lot and only got life's bitterness and woe, while it would seem his richest crown flowed out some other way. Old Mr. Frump had grown a hump from useless burdens borne; he looked as black as old faint and weak as some old sheep just shorn. He never fought on any ground a sure foundation place, and without doubt was down, and out ere start in life's race. Don't be a Frump; don't be a gump, but be alive, my boy, and as your mind so you will find life's richness of joy. It all depends, my youthful friends, upon the point of view, the grouchy grump of Mr. Frump is not for such as you. Look up and smile, you can become life's selfiest things if you let spirit and strive for life give addition wings.

Have you, etc. that spring feeling, a sort of a fluttering about the heart and a tingling in the blood as if you wanted to evade or evade—just all round—etc. etc. getting around about the time of year, and one of these days the chinook will come like a madden with a warm breath, the bonds of winter will be broken and we may bask in the joyous sunshine of sunny Southern Alberta. Won't there be things then? A lot of these virgin prairie acres will be prepared for fruitfulness and the flock of the entire country will assume a new aspect. We don't intend to break into poetry or panegyric about it, but we shall be ready for the spring time when it comes.

The farmers are taking hold of the grain situation in the west and we may expect to see something come of it to relieve the congestion. It is a serious question all will affect adversely the development of this great country.

The political situation in the United States is very exciting and interesting just now. Roosevelt is again in the limelight and Taft has not yet emerged from the eclipse that the ascendancy of Roosevelt has brought about.

A great many big interests in the west are on the tip of expectancy, waiting for winter to break up and bring the opportunity of engaging in large enterprises that call for but in motion until better weather comes.

We do not claim that Progress is the best paper published here but we believe it is worthy of support and if you are not already a subscriber we would like to throw your name on our list.

HOME MANAGEMENT

A wise man has said: "As your women are, so will the nation be. No nation can rise above the level of women. The country woman has her part, an important part, to play in the nation's development."

In its cabin development is the wife or husband's business partner so much as the farm. Until recently she has been a silent partner, but now both are coming to realize that the silent partner needs to get in touch with the outside world as well as the active partner. While the woman is the best teacher of farm-keeping, she must learn how to improve conditions in the home and to establish higher ideals in her community, and together they will manage the farm better than ever before.

In my town several weeks ago, there was a small case and many of the children were vaccinated. A neighbor boy of four came to play with his friend who had the mumps. I met him at the door and explained that he would get the mumps if he came in. He put his right hand upon his left arm and in a surprised voice said, "I've been vaccinated."

Sometimes in solving the problems of rural life, like the boy, we think one preventive, or cure, is all we need to apply. The problem is complex. Some of us are working for

The lecture given by the Rev. John McDougall last Thursday night at the Methodist church should have drawn a much larger audience than it did. The story of fifty years of wild life on the western plains is one full of stirring adventure and "buck" some valuable lessons for the young men who have later plumed. Mr. McDougall's description of a great buffalo hunt in the early sixties was a most graphic and inspiring picture. This great and good pioneer journey has been a model for John in the wilderness making the path straight for the founding of a new empire. He has been a true prophet in the past and he sees a most glorious future for this vast country. It is well to heed the prophecies he says uttered. John McDougall was brought to this land by a higher power who recognized his adaptability to the work of a pioneer preacher and his good deeds will be the monument when he shall pass over the great divide.

G. F. Coffey & Son, sign writers, have the contract for painting and lettering all the offices of the Atlas Lumber Co., successors to the Bowman-She Lumber Co., in Saskatchewan and Alberta, numbering more than fifty. They secured the contract over two well known Calgary firms and their success is another feather in Coffey's cap of prowess. This firm does excellent work not only in this but in the line of photography.

At the Leap Year ball at Suttell last Thursday night Miss Emma Landon of Brooks won first prize for best costume. Miss Landon represented the Brooks Banner, her costume having been made of copies of that newspaper. She took the first prize once before in Brooks in the same character.

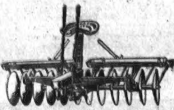

Carlstadt expects to have a local system this summer, and already a number of business people have signified their willingness to have one installed.

Carlstadt is an incorporated village of 300 population free of debt. The first year's councillors of the village were Chas. England, C. F. Starr and H. J. Stevens with Chas. England as chairman. The work accomplished by the council was drainage and building an 8 foot sidewalk along the business portion of the town.

The new buildings erected during the season were the schoolhouse costing $3500, The Carlstadt Hotel costing $25,000 besides some dwelling houses and this year already shows considerable building under construction and what we require now is a efficient gas well and a good grit mill; machinery which will add largely to the business life of the town.

The government is willing to put in rural lines for a subscriber a mile and each phone costs $15 or $20 a year.

There was a time when trails leading to town were quite satisfactory as a good road led to town but the development of land into crops followed by a fence around the property cut off these short

Half Fare Rate to Dry Farm- ing Congress

A special passenger tariff convention has been made by the Canadian Pacific Railway for the Seventh, International Dry-Farming Congress, at Lethbridge, Alberta, Oct. 21-26 of a single fare from all points on its lines in Canada for a round trip ticket.

C. E. E. Usher, passenger traffic manager, has telegraphed E. A.
Cunningham, vice chairman of the Board of Control and President of the Board of Trade, who has been negotiating with the railroads for low transportation, that the C. P. R.
will make the lowest convention rate known, namely: one fare for going and returning, upon the certificate plan.

The rates heretofore granted conventions held in the northwest and west have been one and a half, one quarter or one and one-half fare for a round trip, and this reduction to a single fare from all points in Canada may be followed by the transcontinental roads in the United States, assuring a very large attendance at the Congress and Exposition here next Oct.

Dates of sales of tickets and other details will be announced later on by the Canadian Pacific, and it is anticipated that the American roads will shortly make known their rates.

Rev. R. H. Fisher of Brooks will preach here a week from next Sunday and Rev. E. Barnes will occupy Mr. Fisher's pulpit at Brooks.
